Evelyn; Pepys; Lady Mary Wortley Montagu; Frances Burney (Madame D'Arbley); {...}

{...} if he act foolishly, he is funny; if he let fall from his lips the a load of unmeaning words, they are at once constructed into expressions of the greatest depth, or into stokes of the most incision ~~humour~~ wit.

In all ages and in all climes a very marked eccentricity ~~and~~ or a stupid strangeness of behaviour has always been taken as a necessary adjunct to possession of a genius, and, in very truth, as a thing contributing not a little to the greatness of the man.
