

We have now arrived at imagination, ~~of~~ which it is our object to consider. We are here called, in the first place to examine the part of this division which is called poetry. ~~Here it is.~~

Imagination:-

Imaginative-intellectual: (detective story).

Imaginative-sienti[fi]c: (Descriptions, tales of the Jules Verne kind etc).

Imaginative proper: {...}

Imaginative-emotional: {...}

Imaginative-combative: (Satires.

Imaginative-egotistic: {...}

Imaginative-~~superior~~ moral: #

Lyric: Imaginative + {...}

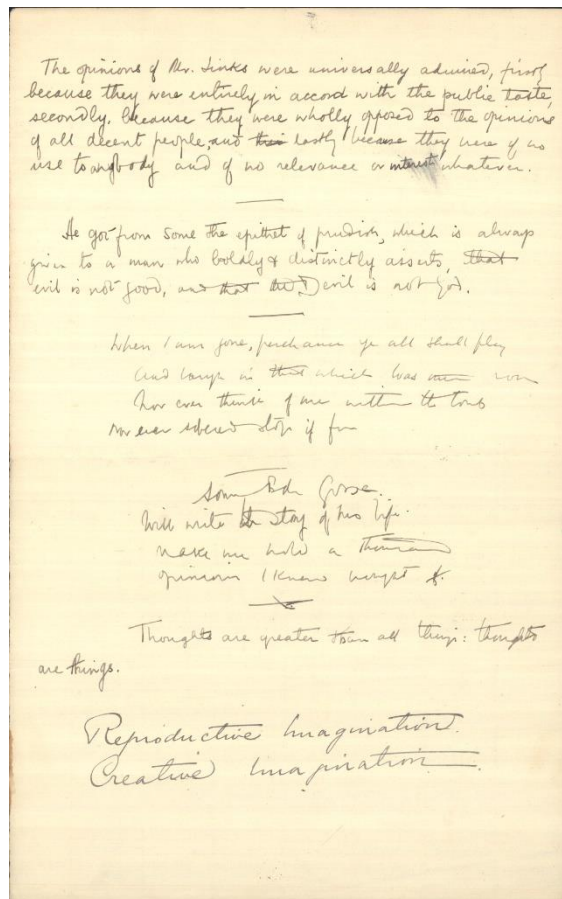

Elegiac: Imaginative + {...}

Epic: Imaginative + {...}

Dramatic: Imaginative + {...}

Satirical: Imaginative + combative.

BNP/E3, 14<sup>6</sup> - 35<sup>v</sup>

Transcrição

The opinions of Mr. Jinks were universally admired, firstly because they were entirely in accord with the public taste, secondly, because they were wholly opposed to the opinions of all decent people, and ~~this~~ lastly because they were of no use to anybody and of no relevance or interest whatever.

He got from some the epithet of prudish, which is always given to a man who boldly and distinctly asserts, that evil is not good, and that the Devil is not God.

When I am gone, perchance ye all shall play
And laugh in that which has turn scorn
Nor even triumph of me without the tomb
Nor even suffered stop if from {...}

Some Edmund Gosse
Will write the story of his life
Make me hold a thousand
Opinions I knew naught of.

Thoughts are greater than all things: thoughts are things.

Reproductive Imagination.
Creative Imagination.

---

DIREITOS ASSOCIADOS

---

O trabalho MODERNISMO - Arquivo Virtual da Geração de Orpheu de <https://modernismo.pt/> está licenciado com uma Licença Creative Commons - Atribuição-NãoComercial-CompartilhaIgual 4.0 Internacional.