

I began thus writing a journal or diary I proposed to keep: "Private Diary." "You had better write that clear," said Nabos, "because as it is no one can read it but you." / [because as it is, it is not readable by anyone save by you.] \

"How many private diaries" said Nabos once to me, "are written for the sake of posterity." "It was just that thought," I replied, "that made me leave off writing mine." "Even if you had" not" Nabos retorted with some irony, "you would never have had energy ~~that~~ or memory to go on with it"

"Nabos," said I once to him; "do you know what happened to me just now?" "No," he replied; "the only thing I know is that it didn't happen to you".
