

Winter Day

Say me ye will: Although thy youth be cheerless,
Yet be thou in this comforted and fearless -
That to thy unhappy /cheerless\ /To thy hopeless\ youth there may succeed
A happy later life, so that indeed
By the comparison with ~~what was~~ when 'twas not Thy happiness will greater be Idle sophism, unst'able and unkind
I know too well how this /all\ is with mankind /is in the mind\;
Too well I know: that when happiness doth fade
In youth, 'tis useless - it is indeed dead.
To be happy in youth and after sad
Is possible, ~~but~~ and otherwise also {...}
But when in youth {...} mad
~~It is~~ 'Tis an unhappiness that cannot go
But that time will deepen. Say no mo.
