For through slavish man & tubing brute
Space with a limit & Time with an end
I see with a vague vividness transcend
The Sun-like shadow of the Absolute.

Love is great here on earth, and great is will Potent are Faith and Monarchy & Hell,
Death is great, mirth is great - I know too well,
All these are great, but love is greater still.

Many a time I've played, and laughed, and gay
Have been my
And while the crowd here and there is hurled,
I wander vaguely in among their number;
Grotesque, unlike them, for my senses slumber
I ponder on God, on matter, on the world.

'Tis strange with a fine inward ridicule,
To think that while these laugh with cheerful face
I see all through them into time & space,
I, stern philosopher, of idealist school.
